WARREN, Knox County, Maine, was formerly known as “Upper town of St. George” and belonged to Waldo Patent. It was known as a trading post as early as 1631. Settled by Scotch-Irish in 1735. Incorporated November 7, 1776, and named in honor of Dr. Joseph Warren who fell in 1775 at Bunker’s Hill. Warren is about 34 miles southeast from Augusta, the capital of the state, and nine miles west from Rockland, the principal city and sea port in the county. The town is bounded northerly by Union, westerly by Waldoboro, southerly by Cushing and south-easterly by Camden, Rockland and Thomaston. The town of Warren contains nearly seven square miles of surface or about 27,500 acres. It is estimated that the water surface takes about sixteen hundred acres. South Pond, the largest sheet of water in town, is about two miles long and one-half mile wide.

The population in 1850 was 2,428; in 1860 it was 2,321; in 1870 it was 1,994; in 1880 it was 2,166; in 1888 it is about 2,000. In 1860 polls numbered 553, and estates were valued at $909,254. In 1870 polls decreased to 494 and estates to $834,610. In 1880 polls increased to 563 and estates are valued at $789,820.

The surface of the town is quite uneven but the soil is excellent especially in the valleys of the river and its tributaries. Mt. Pleasant in the northeast part of the town is the highest elevation, from which a beautiful view is obtained of neighboring towns, the Atlantic ocean, Penobscot bay and the many islands along shore, also the White mountains of New Hampshire. The western declivity is easy of ascent while the eastern is difficult.

By virtue of a warrant from Waterman Thomas, esq., of Waldoboro, on March 10, 1777, the town of Warren held its first annual meeting at the meeting-house. Wm. Watson was chosen Moderator, and the following town officers were elected: Wm. Boggs, Town Clerk; Wm. Watson, Hatevil Libby and Thomas Starrett, Selectmen and Assessors; Reuben Hall and Joseph Copeland, Constables; Patrick Pebbles, Wm. Boggs and Steven Peabody, Committee of Safety; Alex. Lermond, Town Treasurer; Capt. McIntyer, Samuel Creighton, Alex. Lermond, jr., and Robert Montgomery, Surveyors of Highways; Boice Cooper and John Spear, Fence Viewers; Wm. Robinson, Hog-reeve. At a later meeting on April 19, Hatevil Libby was chosen a delegate to attend a county convention for which service he was to receive ten shillings a day. Then began the town records which are preserved to the present day. In 1785, at the March town meeting it was voted "that the town have a town school this year." M. Copeland, W. Lermond and J. Watts were chosen committee. Mr. O'Brien was employed and taught eight months—four months on each side of the river.

In 1786 the first dam was built across the main river and a saw mill erected at the upper falls. The same year James W. Head began his career in town as a merchant.

The rate of labor on the highways in 1788 was four shillings for men, two shillings for yoke of oxen and one shilling for cart or plow, per day. Good mechanics got four shillings and six pence, and common laborers two shillings, eight pence, per day. Pine boards sold for $3 per thousand; oak plank $15 per thousand. Payments were made in goods on which a profit was charged.

It is said that the first ox wagon was introduced in town by John Lermond in 1790.

Sam'l S. Wilde was the first lawyer to settle here. He came in 1794 but moved to Hallowell in 1799.

Small-pox first appeared in the spring of 1800. Several deaths occurred.

Wooden clocks were first introduced this same year and sold for $20 or $25.

In 1802 an act was passed by the Massachusetts legislature giving to the town the exclusive right of disposing of fish in the river on condition of supplying the inhabitants living on the river with shad and alewives, when on hand, to the amount of 500 each at 20 cents per 100, and of choosing a committee to remove any obstructions in the river and other infractions of the law. Proceeds to go into the town treasury and to be disposed of as the town may vote from time to time. In April, 1802, fishery privilege was sold to Reuben Hall for $360, he being the highest bidder. This same year the sum of $333.33 was paid from the fishery fund to the minister Parson Huse. For some years certain amounts were given to different societies. The town now votes yearly to see what shall be done with the privilege. The old law giving 500 alewives to each inhabitant living on the river has been changed to 300, but the 1802 law which allowed fish to be caught but three days per week is now increased to four days. Messrs. Nickerson & Wight now have the privilege of purchasing the overplus. They having a three years lease with privilege of five years.

May 2, 1807, high freshet carried away the old saw-mill.

The first temperance society was organized in 1828 at which time excessive drinking was condemned but moderate drinking was commended.

The "Annals of Warren," by Cyrus Eaton, A. M., was published in the fall of 1851. A second edition was issued in 1877.

The Warren Bible Society was organized November 7, 1855.

In 1867 the Warren Manufacturing Co. was chartered with capital stock of $75,000. The property was destroyed by fire March 18, 1868. By unanimous vote at town meeting it was decided that the mill should be rebuilt. January 12, 1869, the new factory whistle was first heard.

July 14, 1871, steam saw mill was built at South Pond near the depot.

The Knox & Lincoln R. R. reached the western limits of the town August 22, 1871.

June 24, 1876, Edward O'Brien of Thomaston deeds the town ten thousand dollars to be known as "The O'Brien Charity Fund of the Town of Warren." At a town meeting held July 1st the gift was accepted with gratitude.

September 13, 1876, powder mill explosion. Mill was rebuilt. Another explosion occurred in 1887 and the mill has not been run since.

November 8, 1876, the one hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of the town was celebrated.

The principal events in the history of Warren since the celebration of her hundredth anniversary, are well known, but elsewhere we give space to matter that tells its own story, and is given as a reflection of what the town is to-day and has been for the most part for years back.

There are two most excellent water privileges on the St. Georges River at the village. C. T. Bean, esq., in "The Water Powers of Maine" speaks very highly of them. The "Georges River Mills" is the only concern using the power at Factory Falls. The Upper or Knox Falls is not being utilized at present. The river is connected with eight or ten ponds in the vicinity, in addition to the large number lying about its head waters. These ponds empty into the river above the falls, and are susceptible at small expense of indefinite increase of reservoirs. The facilities for artificial reservoirs, also, should these be needed, are very superior. The stream being connected with numerous lakes is constant at all seasons. Counting in only 16 of the larger ponds there are over eleven square miles of reservoirs to these powers. A head of six feet on ten square miles would give on the Knox Falls alone a gross power of 272 horse for ten hours a day, 312 days a year. This is the power due to storage alone not estimating the natural low run of the stream. Lay of the land is excellent for the accommodation of mills. Large volume of water, constancy of flow, accessibility of the power, cheapness of improvement, render this a privilege of unusual excellence and value.

Since August, 1878, which date the present owners of the Georges River Mills took charge of the business the capacity has been doubled. The building is a massive built structure 120x50 feet, four floors. The manufacture of Scotch tweeds and ladies' dress goods is carried on extensively, and the products rank high in the leading markets of the country. Improved machinery is used and everything about the establishment is thoroughly first-class. About a hundred hands are employed in the various departments of the business. Pay day twice a month. Thomas Walker, esq., is the efficient superintendent, and is thoroughly conversant with every branch of the business. They make only all-wool goods; no cotton is used in the establishment.

The Warren Shoe Manufacturing Co. commenced work December, 1871. The building, which cost $8,000, was a three-story structure with French roof. The business was conducted by L. A. Howe a few years previous to December 20, 1875, when Rice & Hutchins assumed control. The property was destroyed by fire June 10, 1882. A new factory was built by the people of the town who also put in boiler, engine and piping. In December, 1882, work again was commenced by Rice & Hutchins, who have since run the business successfully. They manufacture a general line of medium grade shoes, both pegged and nailed. Capacity 1800 pairs per day. They employ 125 hands. A. C. Burgess, esq., is the efficient clerk of the factory to whom we are indebted for many courtesies shown.

In three weeks of his first season 1,200 dozen of eggs were purchased, same period of his last season in the business 10,000 dozens were bought. The first season about $2,100 was paid for eggs; the last season's figures were $18,000. December, 1869, Mr. Wight bought the Starrett place of Stephen P. Crocker and moved on the place January 10, 1870. Having remodeled the house in 1883 it was opened as Wight's Hotel. A livery stable was connected with the house.
